Navigating the Course

The below video will explain how our course is laid out, and how you can navigate between all of the content we have to offer. We have also provided a transcript below the video.

Transcript:

Hi everyone, in this video we will be showing you how to navigate the course content. At the top of the homepage we have a progress bar that shows how much of the course you have completed.

Below this we have a button that'll take you to the student support forum, which we'll cover at the end of this video.

And finally we have all of the course content below in table form, split into the 6 domains; Security Fundamentals, Phishing analysis, threat intelligence, digital forensics, SIEM, and incident response.

We can see this top section has a grey circle, meaning no progress has been made, the blue circle with a tick means the section is complete, and the half circle is a partially completed section. We can expand sections using the arrow on the right to see all lessons or activities included.

Let's jump into a lesson to show you the layout. On the left we have the navbar so you can jump to different lessons. And on the right we have the actual lesson content. If you click on a section heading you can see all lessons in that section. Let's take a look at an activity!

In this activity for digital forensics, students can download the tools and files required, then answer the questions below. We offer Hints to support students, and correct and incorrect answer messages.

Let's have a look at a more technical lesson. In this lesson we teach students how to use browser history viewer to perform browser forensics. And at the bottom of the lesson is a link to the practical exercise.

Lets head back to the course homepage by clicking on Blue Team Level 1 certification at the top of the navbar, and click the button for the student forum. We have created a simple forum where students can read announcements, FAQs, get support, and provide feedback to help shape the course.

Now you know how to navigate the BTL1 course!
